Section 1 Customization

Section 1.1 Instruction

Before the game begins, players will have to choose between the 6 battlesuits offered for their operatives. Take note that there should not be more than one battlesuit of the same type in a faction.

Players will split themselves into 2 factions and discuss within themselves which of the 6 battlesuits to pick without the other faction knowing as well. After selecting their desired battlesuits, players of the same faction will have to discuss amongst themselves on the 6 different arms augment types to equip on their battlesuits. Similar to the battlesuits, there should not be more than one arms augment of the same type equipped on the battlesuits of the same faction.

Section 1.1.1 1 player versus 1 player

In a 1 player versus 1 player scenario, both players will need to separate themselves into different factions and choose individually on 4 out of 6 battlesuits for their operatives. After selecting their desired battlesuits, players will have to choose between the 6 different arms augment types to equip on their battlesuits. Similar to the battlesuits, there should not be more than one arms augment of the same type equipped on the battlesuits of the same faction.

Section 1.1.2 2 players versus 2 players

In a 2 players versus 2 players scenario, players will split themselves into 2 factions and discuss within themselves which of the 6 battlesuits to pick without the other faction knowing as well. After selecting their desired battlesuits, players of the same faction will have to discuss amongst themselves on the 6 different arms augment types to equip on their battlesuits. Similar to the battlesuits, there should not be more than one arms augment of the same type equipped on the battlesuits of the same

Section 1.2 Currency (Lamis)

Lamis can be used at Item shops to buy consumables or upgrade weapon rarity rank

	Acquisition
Pre-Game	At the start of every scenario, both factions will receive 10 lamis to purchase consumables
Mid-Game	Factions will gain 5 lamis for each opposition operative they manage to eliminate. Factions will also gain 2 lamis every turn.
Post-Game	The total lamis from the current scenario will be carried over to the next.

Section 2. Unit Types

There are 6 unit types within the game consisting of Factions, Battle Suits, Arm Augments, Body Augments and Consumables.

Unit Type	Description	Availability	Acquisition
Factions	Factions provide the players characteristic and goals within the game	Player will discuss amongst themselves and split even between 2 factions	Players choose which faction they want at the start of the game
Battle Suits	The primary unit type within the game, determines player's role in combat	There should not be more than one battlesuit of the same type in a faction.	Players choose which Battle Suits they want at the start of the game
Arm Augments	A secondary unit type, determines the player's modifier, damage type and range	There should not be more than one arms augment of the same type equipped on the battlesuits of the same faction.	Players will choose which arms augments they want at the start of the game.
Body Augments	A secondary unit type, determines the player's modifiers and passives	There should not be more than one body augment of the same type equipped on the battlesuits of the same faction.	Players will choose which body augments they want at the start of the game

Section 2.1. Factions

Factions determine the goal of the players within the combat simulation, thus determining which faction succeeds or fails within the game through the players actions throughout the scenarios.

Factions
Eclipse Corporation	Embers Resistance
Description
The Eclipse Corporation was originally a company focusing on revitalizing human civilisation after the World War, through technological advancement. After the coup spearheaded by the CEO of the Eclipse Corporation, Ramon, it is now acting as a government body for Dawn City whilst continuing its research into new technologies	The Embers Resistance is born from the desire of people wishing for the return of freedom and individual will. No longer do they wish to live under the iron rule of the Eclipse Corporation. These like minded individual came together to form a resistance to fight for their ideals, much like how the Eclipse Corporation rose to overthrow the old government many years ago
Goal
To prevent the tragedy of the old government from happening again, the Eclipse Corporation seeks to regulate individual thinking so that no one will be able to escape from their predetermined course.	Fighting to escape the iron fist of the Eclipse Corporation and return freedom of speech and individual will to the populace.

Section 2.2. Battle Suits

Description: Battle Suits are the main unit type within the game, where players can choose a single battle suit that provides them majority of their stats during the combat simulation as well as specialised abilities specific to each battle suit. Each battle suit determines the player's role within a combat simulation affecting how the playstyle of the player as well as possible team compositions.

Acquisition: Players may choose any battle suit they want out of the 6 offered, take note that there cannot be more than 1 of the same type of battlesuit in the same faction.
